NAZI PLANES OVER DANZIG

FEAR OF I.R.A. REPRISALS

London, To-day.
Scotland Yard was maintaining a special watch on known I.R.A. suspects last night.
Special guards have been posted on Government building and power stations as a precaution against possible reprisals for 20-year sentences passed on I.R.A. men at Old Bailey yesterday.—Reuter.

WARSAW ENVOYS IN LONDON AND PARIS

LONDON, TO-DAY.
THE BRITISH AMBASSADOR IN WARSAW, SIR HOWARD KENNARD, ARRIVED IN LONDON BY AIR YESTERDAY.

No special significance is attached to the visit, and it is emphasized that the Ambassador is merely enjoying his normal leave.

It is possibly more than a coincidence, however, that the French Ambassador to Poland, who is on a brief visit to Paris, was received by the French Foreign Minister, M. Bonnet, yesterday.—Reuter.

TENSION REFLECTED ON N.Y. MARKET

New York, To-day.
On the foreign exchange market yesterday, while European currencies continued to be supported by the Central Foreign Exchange Board, the dollar market was still under the influence of the "hot" London market.

German Army Leaders Arrive: Nerves Strained

Danzig, To-day.

Twenty German planes from the Reich circled over Danzig yesterday en route to East Prussia.

A group of German army leaders in mufti arrived yesterday by express train to take over command of the Frei Korps, Storm Trooper members of which are already patrolling the streets under the new name of Heimwehr (Home Army).

The new arrivals are hardly balanced by the influx of Poles; Nazi circles nevertheless profess a genuine fear that Poland, adopting the German tactics, may strike first.

However this may be, the nerves of Danzigers, watching the planes and conscious of Polish guns trained on the city and the military preparations just beyond its frontier, are strained.

Although he was made no statement, it is understood that Dr. Burckhardt, the League High Commissioner, takes a serious view of the situation.—Reuter.

WARNING ON DANZIG

Paris, To-day.

Danzig and the British Foreign Secretary's speech are the leading topics in the French newspapers, the majority of which interpret Lord Halifax's statements as a "final warning" to Germany not to attempt a coup in Danzig.

The semi-official "Petit Parisien" refers to the offer of consultations on the colonial question but expresses scepticism regarding the outcome. According to this paper the Halifax remarks could be regarded as a "warning to the totalitarian Governments but also as a reassuring gesture to the German and Italian people."

In his speech the British Minister indicated that the problem of war or peace is now in the foreground. It is declared the journal emphasises that the Prague coup may not be repeated in Danzig, and expresses the hope that the present claim will be satisfied and that there will be no further complications.

Jap. Raid On Chungking

Shanghai, To-day.

BRIEF messages received here last night state that a number of Japanese planes raided Chungking yesterday afternoon.

Bombs were dropped indiscriminately and many are believed to have been killed and wounded.

Fires, add the messages, were raging last night in the Chinese war-time capital.

Chinese planes took to the air and engaged the raiders in dog-fights. The messages claim that several of the Japanese planes were brought down. The Chinese also lost a few machines. Details are still lacking this morning.—Our Own Correspondent.

What About Films And Film Stars

By LEDO

YOUTH SCORES GREATEST HIT SINCE "DAVID COPPERFIELD"

Freddie Bartholomew's white Eton collar has been traded for a new gun!

The remarkable boy who starred in "David Copperfield" has also changed in several other ways. He is growing up in "Spirit of Culver," Universal's military school drama, in which he co-stars with Jackie Cooper beginning July 8th at the Alhambra Theatre.

Freddie's shoulders are becoming more straight and square. His jaw has developed a new and sturdy firmness. The crisp military manner in which Freddie handled his role of a cadet in the picture, brought the commendation of Brigadier-General L. R. Gignilhat, superintendent of Culver and technical advisor on the film.

REGULAR FELLOW

"All right gang, let's put some snap into it," is the way Bartholomew encouraged the squad of husky youths in the company who joined him in rough and tumble football scrimmage between the scenes.

Like any young fellow, Freddie got a "kick" out of his athletic prowess, and the comradeship of fellow players including Andy Devine, Henry Hull, Tim Holt, Gene Reynolds, Jackie Moran and Walter Tetley.

Few people know it, but the youthful actor has always had the courage to make his own decisions and stand or fall by them.

At the age of ten he persuaded his Aunt Cissy to let him come to America and try for the role of "David Copperfield" in the picture by that name. How he triumphed in that role is Hollywood history.

Born in London, March 28, 1924, Freddie has made a habit of starting things—and seeing them through to the finish. Possessing a quick mind and retentive memory, he started in with amateur theatricals at the age of four. After becoming a local "sensation" in the small town of Warminster, where he had gone to live with his aunt, he persuaded her to take him to London for minor roles on the stage. He also talked his way into small parts in several British films.

IN MANY SUCCESSES

"But I didn't set the world on fire," Freddie explains with a modest grin. After his hit performance in "Copperfield," Bartholomew was cast in "Anna Karenina" at Garbo's request. Other hits include "Professional Soldier," "Little Lord Fauntleroy," "The Devil Is a Sissy," "Kidnapped," and "Listen, Darling."

FOUR'S A CROWD CROWDED WITH STARS AND COMEDY AT KING'S

Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland, Rosalind Russell and Patric Knowles share starring honours in the new Warner Bros. comedy, "Four's A Crowd," which opens to-day at the King's Theatre.

"Four's A Crowd" has only one objective, and that's to make the audience laugh. It is an up-to-the-minute comedy of the American scene. The story moves along at a breathless pace, with a rapid-fire succession of novel and humorous twists.

The four persons with whose fortunes it is mainly concerned are: A bright and fascinating newspaperman, played by Errol Flynn; a spoiled but charming heiress, played by Olivia de Havilland; a clever smoothie of a girl reporter, played by Rosalind Russell; and a rich playboy, played by Patric Knowles, who inherits a newspaper.

Also prominent in the proceedings is Walter Connolly as a rapacious buccaneer of the business world who is Olivia's grandfather. Motivate this group with Errol's desire to get himself a slice of the old man's millions; and his efforts to court Olivia and Rosalind simultaneously. Olivia's indecision as to whether she loves Errol or Pat more, Rosalind's desire to capture Errol for herself, Pat's wish to marry Olivia, and the old man's determination to hang onto his granddaughter and his millions, and you have the essence of "Four's A Crowd."

The story begins with Knowles, inheriting a newspaper and then deciding to end its existence because it is unprofitable. Here Miss Russell tells the playboy what she thinks of him and persuades him not only to keep the paper alive but to hire as its managing editor Mr. Flynn, who had recently retired from newspaper work to become a high-powered "public relations counsellor."

Flynn does put the paper on its feet, his main device to arouse interest being to launch a series of attacks on Connolly's business manipulations. Complications ensue when he meets Olivia, for Errol, who is already giving Rosalind something of a rush, becomes romantically interested in the rich

Flynn also plays both ends against the middle by getting Connolly to retain him as public relations counsellor for the purpose of putting a different picture of the millionaire before the public to the one which Flynn's paper is so busily painting. He accomplishes this by the simple trick of pretending a vast interest in the old man's pet hobby—an elaborate toy railroad set. From there on the story is off on a mad whirl with a final double wedding scene that is a near-panic.

Aside from the principals named, other contributors to the infectious merriment of "Four's A Crowd," include Hugh Herbert, Melville Cooper, Franklin Pangborn, Herman Bing, Margaret Hamilton, Joseph Crehan, Joe Cunningham, Dennie Moore and Gloria Blondell.

HOLLYWOOD LOWDOWN

"Are Husbands Necessary" went before the cameras at Paramount. It will feature Fred MacMurray and Madeleine Carroll, with Helen Broderick Carolyn Lee and Allan Jones.

Universal started "Bright Victory." Jack Cooper and Freddie Bartholomew again are teamed in the leads, and Melville Cooper supporting.

With Joel McCrea, Brenda Marshall, Jeffrey Lynn, Frank McHugh, Nana Bryant and Lionel Royce heading the cast, Warners began "Career Man."

"Charlie Chan at Treasure Island" was completed by 20th. Cent. Fox. In the action are Sidney Toler, Ben Yung, Cesar Romero, Pauline Moore, and Douglas Fowley.

Columbia's completed picture is "Parents on Trial." It will feature Jean Parker and Johnny Downs with Noah Beery Jr.

Metro Goldwyn Mayer are now shooting "Stronger than Desire" starring Virginia Bruce, Walter Pidgeon and ably supported by Rita Johnson.

Anna Neagle started her first American made picture for Herbert Wilcox at RKO studios in Hollywood. The cast includes such important names as Edna May Oliver, George Sanders and May Robson.

What The Stars Foretell

By MARY BLAKE

This day starts under very auspicious conditions. Your prospects for the next four weeks are excellent. You become excited upon the slightest provocation; so control your nerves and temper. Influences will make some of the people born on this date inclined to be foolhardy enough to take dangerous risks, so if July 1 is your birthday anniversary you should avoid doing this. Let your actions, on this day, be motivated by a spirit of fair play, and your thoughts dominated by a sense of justice, for lack of either will retard your progress. You probably will find the average person you meet this day a stickler for the observation of the rules and the commonly accepted usages governing polite society. It will be advisable to do nothing that might shock their sensibilities. Married and engaged couples, as well as sweethearts, should remember truth can be brutally expressed, and on the other hand made inoffensive by being stated gently.

If a woman and July 1 is your birthday, you may make the mistake of trying to create an air of mystery around the simplest things. Bear in mind that evidence of attempted secretiveness is irritating to the average person. You have the instincts of the pioneer. This may lead you into new and profitable fields of endeavour. You perhaps have a surplus of energy and a lot of enthusiasm, which will carry you far. As an artist, actress, interior decorator, shop manager, buyer, sales agent, author or educator you should be very successful. As a married woman, your greatest happiness will apparently come through your home life and children.

The child born on July 1, must not be permitted to become snobbish. This youngster's future may depend upon its early training.

H.K. NAVAL PROMOTIONS

A list of promotions in the Royal Navy, to date from June 30, 1939, has been received by the "China Mail." The following promotions will be of particular interest to Hong Kong:—

Commander to Captain (20 promotions):—R. A. B. Edwards (formerly of the Sandwich); G. A. Voelcker (attached to the staff of the Commander-in-Chief).

Lieutenant-Commander to Commander (35 promotions):—D. V. Sprague (of the submarine Rorqual); C. J. Blake (of the submarine Orpheus); R. H. Craske (of H.M.S. Eagle).

Engineer Commander to Engineer Captain (1 promotion):—S. O. Frew (of H.M.S. Medway).

Lieutenant-Commander (E) to Commander (E) (12 promotions):—J. H. Jenkins (who recently joined H.M.S. Tamar).

Pay-Lieutenant Commander to Pay Commander (14 promotions):—R. H. Ramp (formerly with H.M.S. Herald).

C-IN-C. GOING NORTH

Admiral Sir Percy Noble, Commander-in-Chief of the China Station, sails for Weihaiwei direct on Monday morning, the "China Mail" was officially informed this morning. Admiral H. E. Yarnell, the American Commander-in-Chief, is already in northern waters.

Sir Percy returned from the defence conference at Singapore in H.M.S. Kent; also on board was Major-General A. E. Grassett, in command of British Troops.

On the arrival of the Kent this morning, he was saluted by the Commodore, and the salute was returned. The U.S.S. Tulsa then saluted the Admiral and this, too, was returned.

'Stripping him of everything, even his clothes, bandits left an Oxford undergraduate shivering in the cold on a lonely mountain side near Bukarest.

He was found by shepherds, naked, his body numbed by the piercing wind.

Victim of the outrage was Thomas Kershaw, twenty-three.

ORDERED TO JAIL FOR DEFAMING HUSBAND

A woman was ordered to be committed to jail recently for writing defamatory letters to her husband. She was Mrs. Emily Charlotte McMahon-Brandon, living at Woodford Green, Essex.

Her husband, Mr. Albert John Brandon, lives at Tudor Lodge, Marlowes, Hemel Hempstead, Hertfordshire.

A motion to commit Mrs. Brandon for breach of an injunction was heard by Mr. Justice Simonds in the Chancery Court.

Mr. Montgomery White said that Mr. and Mrs. Brandon had lived apart since 1913.

Last March Mr. Justice Bennett granted an injunction perpetually restraining her from sending to Mr. Brandon, members of his family or any other person letters containing allegations defamatory to him.

Mrs. Brandon had since sent to her husband a postcard and a letter. She had also sent three letters to his solicitor.

Mr. Justice Simonds: I have before me a letter from the defendant which, perhaps, contains more defamatory matter than those you have exhibited. How old is she?

Mr. Montgomery White: I think she must be nearly 60. She keeps a small general store. Although Mr. Brandon would be amply justified in not paying her the allowance under the separation deed, he has continued to do so and has paid her more than he was bound to.

Mrs. Brandon was not in court, and a "Daily Herald" reporter told her of the committal order.

"I do not care whether I go to prison for ten days or ten years," she said, as she sat in her picturesque cafe and general store at Woodford Green.

"Every man who walks into my shop I think is a policeman to take me away, but I will not give in to my husband."

Mrs. Brandon stated that she was only 19 when she married.

After the separation in 1913 she went to Canada and then to the England in 1927 and built store and the United States. She returned to tea rooms at Woodford Green.

Threatened with revolvers he was forced to strip and hand over £3—all the money on him—and a camera.

To prevent him from following them the bandits also made off with his clothes.

MR. J. ROOSEVELT'S ADVENTURE: ONCE MISTAKEN FOR A CONVICT

Mr. Joseph Kennedy, the American Ambassador, told a story of how Mr. James Roosevelt, son of the U. S. President, was once mistaken, in Wales, for an escaped convict.

Mr. Kennedy, who was speaking at the annual banquet in London of the Honourable Society of the Cymmrodorion, said that in an attempt to "cram" on the subject of Wales he appealed to Mr. James Roosevelt, who is now on a visit to this country.

"Jimmy," he continued, "told me of an experience in one of your cities. It seems that he went ashore one day after a tempestuous voyage from a neighbouring port, wearing a pull-over sweater with his school numerals, 1930, sewn on the back.

"On the way into town he noticed that he was being followed by a fairly goodsized crowd of people. This crowd got larger as they went along, until finally Jimmy began to get a bit worried.

"He thought that he had better ask a policeman what he had done to attract such attention. The policeman looked first at Jimmy, then at the crowd, then at the numbers on Jimmy's back. 'You had better take off that sweater, sir,' he said. 'They think that you are an escaped criminal.'"

NOT ON THE MAPS

Mr. Kennedy said he had found the greatest difficulty in finding out anything about Wales. None of the maps at the Embassy even showed it as a separate entity.

Then he tried his friends. One of them told him it was the place Lloyd George came from.

"That fact," Mr. Kennedy observed, "and I speak in all sincerity and seriousness, would justify the existence of any country — and should give any country pride. Wales shall never be forgotten while it produces men of such distinction and character."

One of his younger daughters had a very clear conception. "Wales," she announced triumphantly, "is the place where all the towns have names beginning with double 'L'." As a result of this he tried for two days to pronounce "the longest and toughest name of any place in the world" — and had to give it up. "You all know the one I mean. It begins: L-l-a-n-f-a-i-r-p-w — and so on indefinitely."

Mr. Kennedy said that finally, in his search, he met a Welshman "in a picturesque little building in Adelphi." He said: "A great Frenchman once said that France was a state of mind. The best definition of Wales I can give you is to say that it is something which is found in the heart of a Welshman."

The name referred to by Mr. Kennedy is: Llanfairpwllgwyngyllgogerychwyrndrobwlltysiliogogoch. It is the name of a village in Anglesey.

CLOCK "LOST" 72 YEARS

You would not think it possible to mislay a clock with a 3ft. face and mechanism which includes weights of 3½ cwt.

It has happened at Preston. Back in 1867 a new town hall was built to replace the one erected almost a century before. With the old masonry went the clock, which was replaced by a new timepiece. Nobody bothered about the old servant.

Then a later generation, interested in old Preston, began to wonder if this association with the past had gone on the scrap heap. No one knew.

Now, seventy-two years after the clock vanished, it has been found — at Mr. Garlick's Beech Grove Farm, Greenhalgh, near Kirkham (Lancs), ticking away as efficiently as ever, and with its old dignity, above a barn door.

FARM HANDS REPAIR IT

When it was dismantled it was bought by Mr. Garlick's grandfather, then Mayor of Preston, who had it installed at the farm.

It keeps perfect time on two windings a week. Its hourly strike can be heard a mile away, and it's the Time Dictator for the neighbourhood. It, the striking of Big Ben, heard over the wireless, does not coincide with the farm clock — then Big Ben, they say, is wrong.

The clock was made more than a century ago. There is nothing complicated about its mechanism, and if anything goes wrong — which is seldom — the farm hands can tackle repairs.

PATIENT WENT BY FIRE ENGINE

When Wood Green's only ambulance was not available, a fire engine had to be used to take a patient to hospital.

This was one of the disclosures which caused the Borough Council to agree in principle to the provision of a second ambulance.

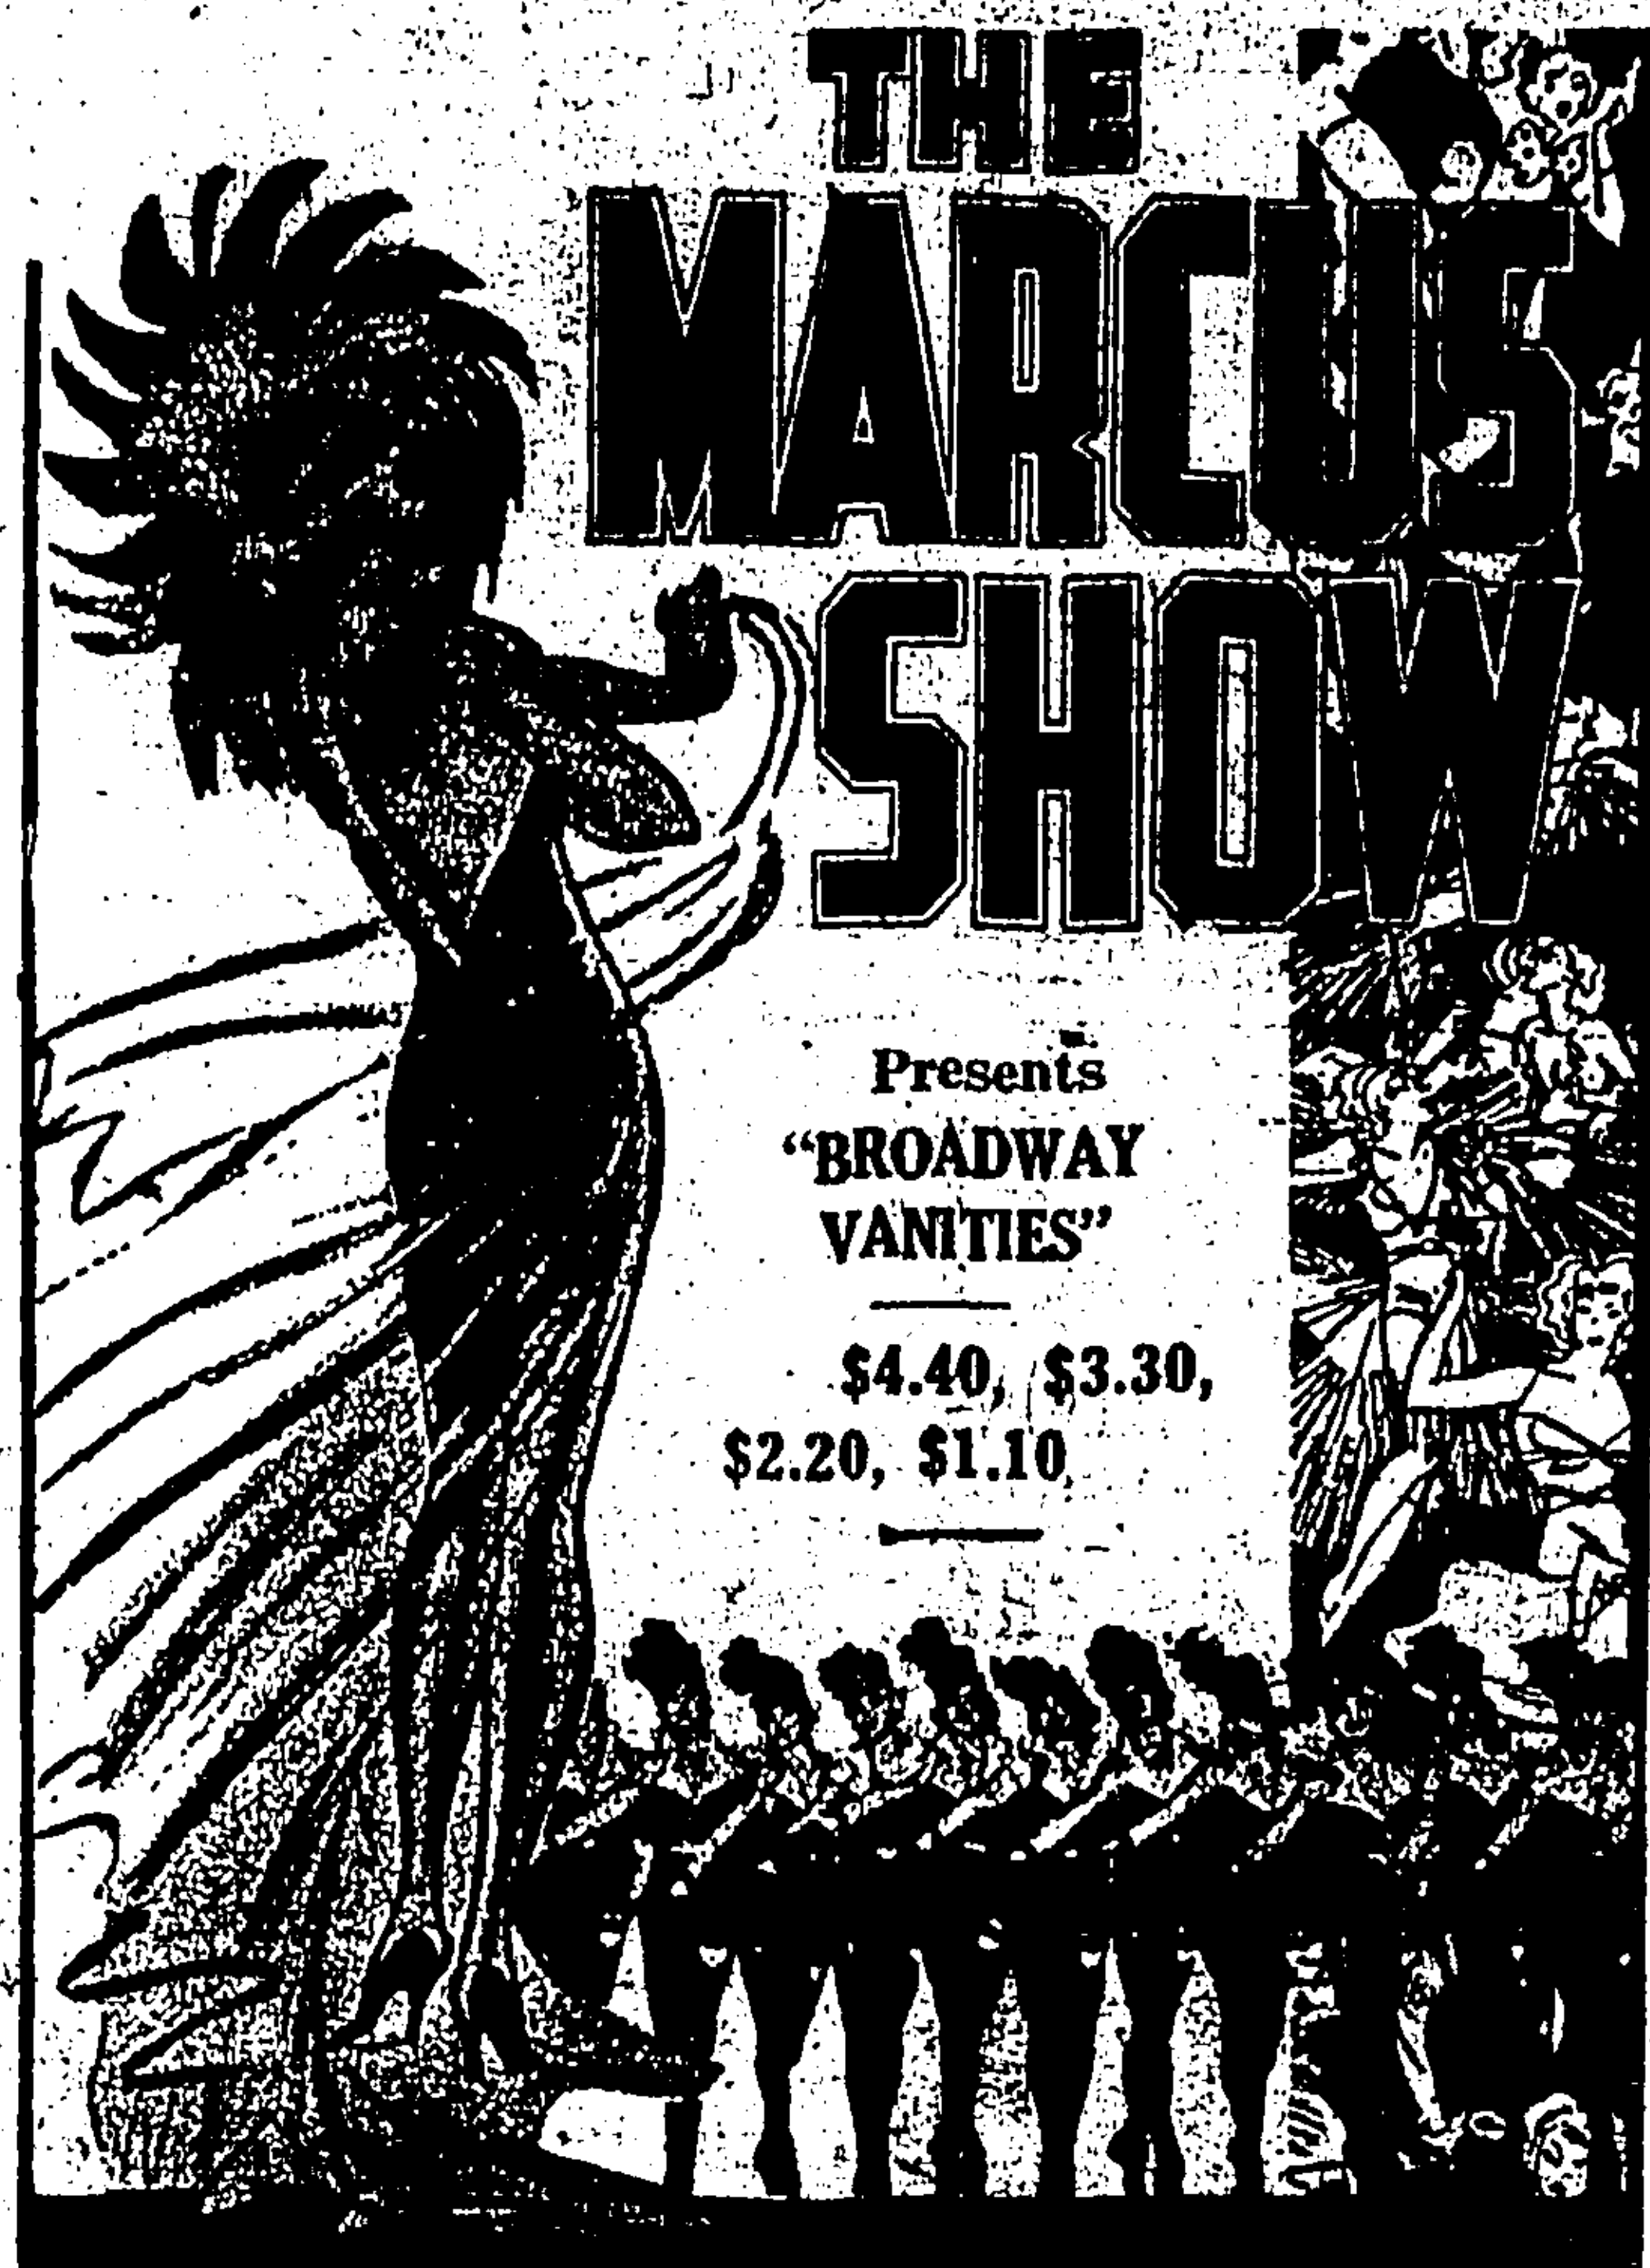

But the Council have deferred consideration of the appointment of two additional firemen to man it. Alderman Anderson, Chairman of the Public Health Committee, told the Council in support of the recommendation for the new ambulance that ambulance attendants should be sent to the station when they had patients to hospital to see if there were any more patients for them to deal with. It was suggested that they went

Reuter Chief And Value Of The Printed Word

London, To-day.

The value of "the printed word" as a weapon in British publicity armament was emphasised by Sir Roderick Jones, Chairman of Reuter's, at the Empire Press Union Conference yesterday. Sir Roderick claimed that the propagation of printed words was most highly organised, widespread, potent and enduring in its achievement.

Notwithstanding the success which attended the B.B.C. home and foreign language broadcasts, and the increasing circle of listeners, the speaker said that newspaper circulations to-day had soared higher than ever.

"The printed word is read more than it has ever been," Sir Roderick stated, and added that no nation could afford to ignore or underrate the press as a means of informing and influencing the people at large.

Sir Roderick dwelt on the enormous outlay by the totalitarian Governments on issuing the printed word.

TOTALITARIAN COMPETITION

"This news propaganda can only be held at bay successfully by a British news service of the highest quality. One such has long existed—the only British agency which penetrates to the majority of foreign countries and elsewhere.

"But, conducted on strictly commercial lines, it can no longer compete in volume with heavily subsidised foreign services, totalitarian or otherwise, which it encounters chiefly on the Continent of Europe and in the Far East.

Unless some means can be devised for utilising the worldwide organisation of this British service for the dissemination of a volume of news sufficiently large to counterbalance the influence of its subsidised rivals, and for making available to newspapers not only British news and the British viewpoint but the British version of international events in supplement of and in correction of the version given out by others—unless this could be done our country's cause, the cause of the Empire, will suffer as far as we are concerned in the eyes of the rest of the world."

TAINT OF SUBSIDY

Sir Roderick said the problem was how to place British news in foreign countries financially in a position to counteract its competitors without exposing it to the taint of subsidy and the loss of its reputation for independence.

During the subsequent debate, speakers endorsed Sir Roderick Jones' views, and the following resolution was moved by Sir Stanley Reed, M.P. and unanimously carried:

"That this Conference, while recognising the work that is being done by the B.B.C. and other agencies in the promotion of British publicity abroad, urges now upon the Government the necessity of encouraging by every means in its power the increased dissemination of British news and of international news of British origin through existing unofficial channels to the newspapers of foreign countries as a corrective to heavily subsidised foreign services now in circulation."—Reuter.

Defences Of Netherlands East Indies Strengthened

Bandoeng, June 25.

In view of the troubled situation in Europe and the Far East, an extensive scheme to strengthen the defences of the Netherlands East Indies is being rushed by the authorities.

While efforts are being made to increase the army in the East Indies by at least 25 per cent., large quantities of the most modern military equipment, including various types of artillery, anti-aircraft guns and the fastest available tanks, are arriving by every ship from Europe.

All activity is pivoting around the city of Bandoeng, where the high command and a large garrison are stationed. The whole military organisation here presents a picture of the highest efficiency, and enjoys greater prestige than ever before.

Emphasis is being laid in particular upon improvement of the army air force, which also makes its headquarters at Bandoeng. The fleet of Glenn Martin bombers with an estimated range of 2,000 miles is being augmented, while additional new equipment includes fighter fighters and other types of aircraft.

The army air force has just completed the largest public demonstration in its history to celebrate the 25th anniversary of its formation. This was attended by thousands of spectators who gathered around the fringes of the Bandoeng air field to see a large fleet of bombers take the air and demonstrations of formations flying by fighter units.

The projected increase in the East Indies army will entail the bringing of additional troops from Holland as well as raising the strength of the native branches, while it is understood that a considerable amount of recruiting will be carried out locally.

In order to hasten matters and cut training costs, methods have been instituted whereby members of the militia are being mixed with the regular army during the period of compulsory military training. The militia is comprised of Europeans residing in the Netherlands Indies, who take compulsory military training lasting from eight months to a year.

It is particularly significant that this year about half of the total budget of the Netherlands East Indies is being expended upon the army and navy. The increase in the army and navy will be the result of the fact that the capital of the East Indies navy has been moved from Batavia to Bandoeng. It is understood that the navy will be present at the anniversary of the formation of the navy.

REPORT OF HITLER VISIT TO DANZIG

DOES THIS MEAN NAZI COUP IS COMING

Berlin, To-day.

A report that Hitler plans to visit Danzig about July 20, was being discussed in foreign political quarters here yesterday afternoon.

Officials refuse to deny the report, but say they have absolutely no reason to suppose it is true.

They think it most unlikely that Hitler would plan such details so far ahead.

The report suggested that Hitler's visit might be preceded by visits by other Nazi leaders, including Field-Marshal Goering, the Air Minister.

It is also rumoured that Germany is considering abandoning the practice of notifying the Polish authorities before important German personages visit Danzig.

It is remarked that "Danzig is scarcely in the news at the moment," and neither official quarters nor the press display the least excitement about the situation.—Reuter.

SOS IN APPLE— SAVED

An apple, inside which a pencil-scrawled SOS message had been stuffed, brought an ambulance and medical staff to the aid of a sick man and saved his life.

As an express train rushed towards London—on a 100-mile non-stop journey—the railway guard flung the apple towards a signalman's cabin at Luton.

It was picked up, London was phoned, and as the train steamed into St. Pancras Station an ambulance was waiting.

Aboard the train, which was travelling from the North a young soldier passenger, Joseph Smith, nineteen, of Aldershot Barracks, became critically ill.

He was saved by the cool thinking of Mr. George Loft-house, of Breakspear-avenue, St. Albans, who, knowing there was no phone on the train, hit upon his SOS apple.

It was picked up immediately by the signal-man, who promptly phoned London when he read the message, stuck in a slit made in the apple.

Derek Ascroft, aged ten, of Stormey, Middleton, Sheffield, said "I heard the guard shout that a man was dying and that help must be got. He thought for a minute, and then he quickly scribbled a note."

"He took an apple from his pocket, slit it with a knife, and stuffed the note inside."

From the station Smith was taken to St. Pancras Hospital, where he was treated before being sent to the military hospital at Millbank, his life saved.

SUN ECLIPSES TO ORDER

Anyone who can eclipse the sun at will deserves a medal.

Recently, M. Bernard Lyot, the French astronomer, got what he deserved.

He was awarded the gold medal of the Royal Astronomical Society for his work in putting the sun at the service of the astronomers.

"It is so simple. I do not know how I thought of it," he said, when he explained his device. He was quite embarrassed by his distinction.

After all, what has he done? Merely enabled, astronomers to study eclipses for 12 hours a day instead of for a few desperate minutes every few years, at immense cost and by much travel.

EASILY DONE

This boyish-looking 42-year-old French man, with his twinkling eyes and Ronald Colman moustache, can sit comfortably in his observatory 9,000 feet up in the Pyrenees and photograph or film total eclipses to his heart's content.

He developed an astronomical camera. In it he placed an artificial moon.

When the sun is eclipsed, the moon covers the face of the sun and leaves the corona, with its flaming gases, visible. It is from this corona that the scientists learn so much.

M. Lyot could not hang a moon in Space. Instead he placed a metal disc in the focus of his camera. The effect was the same.

CLEAR PICTURE

But just as the dazzle of the sun deceives the eye and hides the corona, so does the scattered light which leaks in through the edges of the lens and destroys the photograph of the corona.

So M. Lyot inserted a diaphragm in the camera as well. This masked the stray light and left him with a clear-cut picture of the corona.

It is possible to photograph the spectrum in which M. Lyot has found five new lines.

But the device has its shortcomings. A natural eclipse can tell the astronomers more about the blue and ultra-violet light from the Jerusalem, To-day.

The district court yesterday sentenced Max Seligman to six months' imprisonment for conspiring to land illegal Jewish immigrants.

CHURCHILL BELITTLES SUBMARINES

LONDON, JUNE 25.

A SPEECH ON BRITAIN'S AIR FORCE AND ANTI-AIRCRAFT DEFENCES WAS DELIVERED TO-DAY BY MR. WINSTON CHURCHILL, PROMINENT TORY M. P. FOR EPPING, ESSEX, AT WOODFORD, IN THE SAME COUNTY.

He asserted that Britain's aviation and defence system had been brought to such a high degree of efficiency that it would be "very dangerous and very costly" for any enemy to attack Britain by air.

"This does not mean that these attacks will not be made. But the loss of one in five of the planes which come will very soon bring regular daylight attacks to an end," he stated.

"As to night attacks: this is a more problematical matter.

"Science which has come to our aid will enable our airforce to levy a heavy toll.

"Moreover, attackers at night can never hit with accuracy any special buildings or points of importance.

Speaking of the submarine peril, Mr. Churchill stated in conclusion that this was of less importance to-day than it was in 1917 and 1918.—Havas.

corona, although M. Lyot's camera is better on the visible and invisible reds.

He showed films of the movements of the corona and its "prominences" like great dancing fountains of fireworks—leaping as high as the distance between the earth and the moon—and solar explosions tossed hundreds of thousands of miles.

The eminent audience, including Sir James Jeans, Sir Arthur Eddington and the Astronomer Royal stamped and clapped like a crowd of youngsters at a Wild West thriller.

"One eminent astronomer has proved that to photograph the corona without an eclipse was impossible," said Dr. Spencer Jones, the Astronomer Royal. "M. Lyot has achieved the impossible."

DUTCH CABINET RESIGNS

THE HAGUE, TO-DAY.

THE RESIGNATION OF THE NETHERLANDS CABINET IS OFFICIALLY ANNOUNCED HERE.

Queen Wilhelmina yesterday morning commissioned Premier Colijn with the formation of a new Government.

It is expected that the Premier will endeavour to form a new government on a broader basis with the participation of Liberals and Democrats.

The resignation of the Colijn Cabinet was due to divergences of opinion within the Cabinet concerning matters of financial policy.

The announcement of the Government's resignation came by no means as a surprise, since it had generally been expected in informed quarters that the Premier would offer the Cabinet's resignation during his audience with the Queen at Soestdijk Castle early yesterday morning.—Trans-Ocean.

WEITOU ISLAND LANDING MEETS FAILURE

Poochow, To-day.

A Japanese landing at Weitou Island lying between Changmen on the mainland and Sharp Peak Island on Thursday was successfully frustrated by Chinese resistance.

Some 300 Japanese tried to land in a number of boats. The Chinese directed heavy fire against them when they were near. Several boats were sunk and many Japanese were killed.

Japanese guns mounted on Sharo Peak Island at the entrance of the Min River shelled the mainland yesterday.—Central News.

ALMOST CERTAIN DEATH FOR ROOSEVELT BILL

Washington, To-day.

The House of Representatives yesterday backed up the Administration by voting approval of the compromise Monetary Bill by 229 votes to 140.

THE DAILY SHORT STORY

Peaceful Village

Raymond stopped his car at the edge of the village and stared with satisfaction at the cluster of white-painted houses. Greenville was exactly what he expected: A quiet, drowsy, peace-loving community. It was inhabited by a happy, contented people, a people who weren't easily aroused.

Raymond drove slowly down the main street. He noted with satisfaction the half dozen stores, the picket fences that enclosed well-kept lawns and clean white houses set back from the street and shaded by wide-spreading trees. He saw the white-spined church, the town hall with its barred windows in one ell, the school house, the fire company's headquarters, the bank.

He looked at the bank closely, but not too closely. It was a nice little bank, vine-covered, trusting. Like the rest of the town, it looked prosperous. The bank, Raymond guessed, was well-filled with the savings of prosperous farmers for miles around. Raymond smiled to himself. These accumulated emotions unleashed, humans aroused to a pitch of insane violence. Led by a big, red-bearded man carrying a pick axe handle, the mob surged up the town hall steps while crowds of spectators jeered.

"But they can't do that!" Raymond cried. "Where are the police? Prisoners should be protected."

"Ain't near as much reason for prisoners to be protected as it is for poor helpless widows like Miz Andrews." He added dryly: "Chief Emmott, who is the whole police department in this town, has gone down to Hathaway to call on his sick aunt."

Raymond ran a finger inside his collar. He stood in a sort of paralytic fright, watching as the leaders of the mob suddenly burst from the jail carrying between them a shrieking, terror-stricken prisoner.

With growing horror Raymond watched the citizens of the quiet, sleepy village of Greenville carry their victim to the town square, where, with a good deal of ceremony he was first ed savings were going to make him a nice little nest egg.

Raymond drove to the hotel and hired himself a room that overlooked the church, jail and bank. He sat for a long time studying the latter. Yes, he was smart in coming here. These people were simpleminded country folks. Trusting. Why, the clerk downstairs had even called him sir when he explained that he was representing a large western manufacturing concern, interested in locating a factory in the vicinity. Oh, it was going to be easy winning the confidence of these people.

Raymond had travelled for that day and he was tired. He lay down on the bed, breathed deeply of the fragrant breeze that drifted through the window. Presently, like the rest of the town, Raymond slept.

He awoke to a peculiar roaring noise in his ears. Outside, night had fallen, but the town was illuminated by a weird sort of flickering light.

Curious, Raymond rushed to the window. Far up the main street he saw a band of men moving toward the north end of town. The men carried torches. As they approached, their deep-throated angry cries smote Raymond's ears.

In faint alarm Raymond raced downstairs. He found the hotel clerk lounging in the doorway, looking down the street.

"What's up?" Raymond demanded. "What's happened?"

The clerk grinned at him without moving. "Some of the boys are storming the jail. Stick around and watch the fun."

"Storming the jail? Why? What are they going to do?"

"Oh, they'd decided to tar and feather one of the inmates and ride him out of town on a rail."

"What'd he do?"

"Tried to swindle the Widow Andrews out of her savings by selling her oil stocks." The clerk regarded Raymond quizzically. "Jigger dropped in town a week or so ago, posing as an oil well owner from out west."

Raymond swallowed and looked out into the street. The mob had come abreast of the jail. What, this afternoon had been a calm and sleepy main street was now a seething mass of angry humanity, humans with primitive

PHILIPPINES CONTROL RETENTION URGED

MR. McNUTT HINTS AT JAPANESE DANGER

Indianapolis, To-day.

Mr. Paul McNutt, High Commissioner for the Philippines, in a speech here yesterday urged that the United States should retain control of the islands indefinitely instead of granting independence in 1946.

Mr. McNutt contended that since the Philippine Independence Act of 1934, "the problem had broadened."

Many Philippine leaders now felt that their independence might turn out to be a "mere change in sovereignties."

Mr. McNutt continued: "As long as our flag flies over the island, no foreign Power will trespass irrespective of the military forces stationed there."

"If our flag comes down, trouble will follow, for at least a generation."—Reuter.

"DOWN WITH THE JAILERS" CRY IN LONDON

London, June 25.

Two hundred Irishmen paraded through the streets of London to-day and, after procession, some 2,000 people gathered to hear soapbox orators criticise and place on trial "British imperialism since the days of Cromwell."

The men wore brassards of orange, green and white, and carried banners with inscriptions, such as these "Ireland will never have peace without liberty," "Death rather than conscription" and "Down with the jailers, Craigavon, De Valera, Chamberlain and Franco."—Havas.

400 CHILDREN GET PTOMAIN POISONING

New York, June 25.

More than 400 children attending school in the State of New York are suffering from ptomaine poisoning.

Such is the result of the investigation ordered by the Mayor of New York, Mr. Fiorello LaGuardia, following the discovery that many children have been taken ill after having partaken of the food served them in the public school of Staten Island. 155 children are still in hospital at present and several cases have proved to be quite serious.

The investigation has further made it clear that improper and dangerous food has been served in various occasions to the children.—Havas.

Likelihood Of Monarchical Regime In Spain

London, June 25.

The restoration of the monarchy in Spain, which seemed of late to be becoming impossible, was held probable by British observers just returned from the Iberian peninsula and questioned by newsmen to-day.

Chances for the restoration were increased since foreign troops left Spain, they declared. Generalissimo Francisco Franco often stated that his monarchist convictions were not dead, they pointed out.

He said he was sure that the re-establishment of the monarchy was the only way to maintain unity among the various parties and integrity and independence in foreign affairs.

Spanish quarters pointed out that if their country were to conclude a military alliance with Italy and the Reich, she would find herself completely subjugated by the axis powers because of her weaker military forces.

British political quarters therefore speculate a great deal on chances that the third anniversary of the civil war, on July 18, may see important changes in Spain's form of Government.

Don Juan, youngest son of ex-King Alfonso, is held to be the most probable selection to sit on the throne vacated by his father on April 13, 1931.

But some quarters maintain that Alfonso himself may return to exercise again the Royal Power that he gave up when the Republican Spanish Government was established.

Observers stated that the situation depended a great deal on the issue of the fight for influence between the Falangists and other parties, who might settle their differences and sweep away the necessity for a unifying monarchical regime.—Havas.

HIS 'SIX' BROKE SCENT RACKET

But for the cricketing prowess of a young apprentice at Tilbury (Essex) Docks, a scent smuggling "racket" which detectives and Customs officials now have well in hand, might have continued to flourish.

In a dinner time game of knockabout cricket the apprentice crashed the ball into the heart of a large bush on some waste ground near the docks, and in the hunt for the ball the lads found a large sackcloth parcel. In it were two dozen bot-ties of scent.

On A Good Thing

Delighted with their find, they talked about it at their work. The story got around, reached the ears of the authorities.

They found that seamen on ships trading to the Continent, particularly to Belgium, were smuggling the scent into the docks, and then, at an opportune moment, into their ships.

With small craft making two trips a week to the Continent, the smugglers were on a good thing.

MIRROR OF OPINION

In Germany's attitude towards the Baltic States a great change took place when the policy of German-Polish co-operation came to an end.

About a year ago, and even more recently, leading Nazi circles discussed the plan of a Polish protectorate over Lithuania after Memel was re-incorporated in the Reich. To-day Germany is busily engaged in tying Lithuania politically and economically closer to the Reich. She has adopted a similar policy towards Latvia and Estonia. "Time and Tide."

At present Portuguese foreign policy has three cardinal principles: the first is the alliance with Britain, the second is friendship with Spain (a friendship with a neighbour at least three times the size and with an Army which is experienced in modern warfare), and the third is friendship with Brazil.

It is a sane, realistic policy. Many people believe that it is advantageous to Great Britain in many ways, for the close relations between Portugal and Spain are a counterpoise to Axis influence in Spain. Portugal, in more than one way, can influence Spanish policy.

If Britain to-day enjoys the full confidence of her ancient ally, this is due to the work of three men: to Dr. Salazar himself, who realised that the two Atlantic countries must support each other, to the Portuguese Ambassador in London, Dr. Monteiro, and to the British Ambassador in Lisbon, Sir Walford Selby.—"Manchester Guardian."

There comes a point when forbearance only serves to stimulate violence. It cannot be ignored that certain sections of the Japanese Army in China are bent on humiliating and injuring Great Britain wherever they can, while the Japanese Press is instructed to hold up Great Britain as Japan's chief enemy, and the sole cause of China's aggravating refusal to admit herself beaten.

That this state of affairs will become worse and worse unless we continue to Japan that we will not tolerate it is certain. There is only one method by which such a conviction can be driven home to the Japanese military mind. But there are plenty of ways at our disposal by which it can be applied. Britain and the Far East.

If there is an Anglo-Russian Alliance, as now seems possible, Hitler must know that the days of swift and overwhelming coups are over, and a lightning war on either front is an unlikely proposition. He also knows that among the anti-aggression countries he retains conscious friends among the rich, and unconscious allies among those who cannot bring themselves to face the choice he sets before them.

It is not impossible for Germany to return to rationalism and peaceful settlement if the German people know that the peace alliance is firm but is also reasonable.—"New Statesman And Nation."

Apart from long-period consideration the steps which should be taken now to prepare agriculture for a war in say, the next eighteen months may be summed up in four headings:

(1) The storing of reserves of fertilisers, tractors, the oil to drive them and the seed they will plant (the Government has already begun to lay in stocks of the first three); (2) the development of such processes as grass drying, ensilage, and the use of by-products like sugar beet pulp as substitutes, if necessary, for imported foods; (3) the encouragement in purely grass areas of the traditions of cultivation as applied to pasture, whether permanent or temporary; and (4) the planning of the necessary administration.—"The Economist."

"Monopolies controlled in the public interest" produce two major results, both anti-social. The more obvious of these two results is the placing of the monopolists in a position to hold up the public with arbitrary increases of prices. Control in the public interest has not shown itself particularly effective, for instance, in the recent matter of suburban fares.

But there is a second and far more disastrous result. An agreement come to between the leaders of two competing interests does not take into account the needs of the independent rank and file of those interests. The railways, it is true, have none such: all are wage-earners. But with road transport it is quite different. There are still a multitude of men owning from one to ten lorries to whom any such agreement spells loss of independence—perhaps ruin.—"Weekly Review."

People have gone down on their knees and thanked God for Neville Chamberlain. Others have shrieked for his head and accused him of every crime in the political code. He has been grateful for the encouragement without being hysterical about it. And he has been outwardly indifferent to abuse no matter how much he has been hurt.

What will history say of him? I hope and believe the verdict will be: "This man brought his country back from the financial abyss of 1931 and restored stability. As Prime Minister he stood in No Man's Land between the armies of Europe and forbade the horrors of war. Then by tolerance and strength he rallied the forces of justice until aggression had to sheathe its sword and peace came to a troubled world."—"Home and Empire."

DEAN'S ATTACK ON DICTATORS

The Very Rev. A. S. Duncan-Jones, Dean of Chichester, preaching in Chichester Cathedral, said that a striking feature of the world now was the elevation of the lie into a principle of action.

The leaders of great peoples publicly proclaimed that they would use the lie as a chief element in their policy. Herr Hitler laid it down that "success is the only earthly criterion of right and wrong." Signor Mussolini expressed with terse brilliance a similar contempt for reason and morality.

"We live in an age," the Dean said, "when propaganda has replaced truth."

"The propagandist must know his audience, understand its fears, its worries, and its disappointments. He must restore its faith in itself, and make the numbers feel that their worries are due to some black-guard, some hidden hand, some wily foe. As long as he does this it does not matter what lies he tells."

Hand in hand were appeals to the crowd to place themselves in the hands of a leader who was sacrosanct and above criticism. He might still he would and must be always change his whole policy, contradict right.

TORSO: GIRL IN TERROR SPEAKS

LEEDS, JUNE 16.

A £250 REWARD FOR INFORMATION THAT WILL LEAD TO THE CONVICTION OF THE MURDERER OF ETHEL ("WINKIE-POP") WRAITHMELL, 20-YEAR-OLD HOMELESS WANDER, WAS ANNOUNCED IN LEEDS TONIGHT.

For three days Mr. Frank Swaby, the chief constable, has been negotiating secretly with a woman informer who alleges she can assist the police in their investigations as to where and how the murder was committed, and who did it.

But the woman was terrified. She feared that if she talked the fate of Ethel Wraithmell might await her, too, at the hands of the underworld.

It was impossible for her to go to the town hall police station—she was too closely watched. Her offer of information was smuggled out of the house where she lives.

Police protection was guaranteed her, and a payment of £50. She was at first too scared to agree.

Then mysterious intermediaries from the underworld took a hand. They began to bargain for a "rake-off."

Mr. Swaby had obtained a free hand from his watch committee to pay up to a certain sum. Suddenly the price for revealing the murderer was raised.

To-day he called to his office the West Riding police chiefs co-operating in the hunt from their headquarters at the tiny Barley Corn Inn in Scholes, near Leeds. For the first time he told them of the bargaining that had been going on.

Members of the watch committee were asked by telephone whether they would increase the amount and not ask the reason why.

Alderman R. H. Blackburn, the chairman, was holidaying in Buxton. The other members had to act quickly in his absence, without consulting him.

The reward, one of the largest ever offered in a murder case, was too big to come out of the Police Administration Fund accounts under a "gratuity" heading. Watch committee finances are made public in annual corporation reports, but one of the promises made to the informer was absolute secrecy.

The only way in which the money could be paid out in this way without divulging names to the public audit was by issuing the offer of the reward. But there was, of course, no need to print any posters about it.

Reeves was in this group and took swift action, pouncing on Comper and knocking him down. It was unfortunate that Comper fell so awkwardly as to fracture his skull. But the court held that there was no justification for the trial of Reeves on charges of murder.—Havas.

GLOUCESTERSHIRE BEAT YORKSHIRE FOR SECOND TIME THIS SEASON

London, To-day. — Gloucestershire have demonstrated in no uncertain manner their superiority over Yorkshire. Playing at Bristol in a match which concluded yesterday they beat the potential champions by the large margin of seven wickets.

This is the second occasion this season that they have accomplished this feat, winning fairly comfortably after Yorkshire made a sporting declaration. Barnett, the England opening batsman, then played a magnificent innings and Gloucestershire knocked off the runs in quick time.

Chiefly responsible for their victory yesterday was Goddard, who returned some amazing bowling figures—13 for 99—to dismiss the Tykes for 176 and 105. Actually Gloucester were led on the first innings thanks to Verity, who took 7 for 47.

Another powerful county to meet with a reverse was Lancashire, who dropped first-innings points against

Strong Come-Back

Lancashire, led by a narrow margin on the first innings, came back strongly in the second when Paynter made a century but Glamorgan had little difficulty in playing out time.

At Tunbridge Wells, Kent scored a good win over Leicestershire principally through the efforts of Fagg, who made a century, and Harding, who took 9 for 47 in the two innings.

At Derby—Sussex beat Derbyshire shire by 13 runs.
Sussex—258 (Barlett 93, Copson 6 for 64) and 147.
Derbyshire—198 (Duffield 5 for 38) 194 (Worthington 119 James Langridge 5 for 3).

At Southampton, Essex beat Hampshire by 37 runs.
Essex—181 (Boyes 6 for 45) and 241 for 9 dec.).
Hampshire—229 and 156 (Peter Smith 5 for 38).

At Tunbridge Wells, Kent beat Leicestershire by 161 runs.
Kent—190 (Smith 5 for 52) and 222 for 5 dec. (Fagg 131).
Leicestershire—166 (Harding 5 for 31) and 85 (Harding 4 for 16).

At Nottingham, Nottingham beat Worcestershire on first inning.
Worcestershire—310 (Palmer 110, Voce 5 for 72) and 254 for 5 dec. (Cooper 97).
Nottinghamshire—357.

At Cardiff, Glamorganshire beat Lancashire on first inning.
Lancashire—249 and 291 for 9 dec. (Paynter 140).

FROM HERE AND THERE

I mentioned in this column on Monday that S. O. Khoo, a brother of Kho Sin-kie, was a member of South China's "C" League tennis team.

This is not perfectly correct as this player, who is said to be well up to the standard of Tsui Yan-pui, was only passing through on his way to Shanghai. A visiting member of South China, he took the opportunity of playing one game against C.R.C. Most unfortunate from C.R.C.'s point of view!

THERE is a type of sportsman, not usually met out here, who flourishes, practices and holds tournaments with regularity in England.

He is a type for whom nobody could have anything but the utmost admiration. A man who although seriously handicapped physically owing to misfortune acquired after a taste for a particular type of sport has been acquired, adapts himself to circumstances and carries on to develop a skill which very often places him on an equal footing when it comes to a test against an opponent more fortunate in the matter of physical equipment.

This all arises out of an article published in the "China Mail" on Thursday concerning the entry of G. Marseille, of Royal Hong Kong Golf Club, into the semi-final of the One-Armed Golfing Championship of Britain.

Marseille was out here quite recently and although I did not know him personally, I followed his sporting activities with some interest. He is really a shining example of how determination can triumph over physical disability. Not only is he a golfer of class but in Hong Kong he used to figure in tennis tournaments with some success.

I have not had information regarding how he fared in his semi-final but I do know that prior to the championship, he represented England against Scotland in the One-Armed players international and played a big part in the English victory.

I understand that General Sutton, who, I think is still in Hong Kong is a first-class golfer despite the loss of an arm whilst campaigning, while all local lawn bowlers will be familiar with A. J. "Hope" Kew, former star athlete of Hong Kong University, who, on developing a leg ailment which caused him to keep that member in a brace for some years, took to lawn bowls and is now no mean exponent of the game.

TENNIS EXHIBITIONS TO-MORROW

Tennis enthusiasts are reminded of the charity tennis exhibition at Chinese Recreation Club to-morrow.

An exceptionally interesting programme has been arranged, main feature being the singles clash between V. T. Wang, exchampion of Shanghai, and Tsui Wai-pui, local champion.

Other matches are:—

Wang and H. D. Rumjahn v. Tsui Brothers.
Dr. Philip Tian and Miss Yeung Wai-bun v. Dr. D. Y. Lin and Mrs. Chiu Chun-Chiu (provisional).

Messrs. Dunlops are contributing the balls for the match and also two tennis rackets for raffling. Starting time is 3 p.m.

DUNCAN AND GILL WIN OPEN PAIRS BOWLS TIE

G. Duncan and W. Gill beat A. M. Omar and W. J. Penny in the Open Pairs Bowls Championship yesterday by 25 runs to 16.

LAWN BOWLS

THE WINNERS ARE NOT EASY TO SPOT

(By "SKIP")

Only Kowloon Docks win against the Police spoiled by forecast last Saturday, but it is going to be a much more difficult problem to pick the winners this much. The programme is an unusually interesting one and although there are one or two outstanding games, I propose to comment on it in the order in which they appear.

Had the Docks not won last week I would have said right away that the Civil Servants would open their account to-day but it is not as easy as that.

Freddie Jones, co-winner of the the Open Pairs and a member of the rink in "Grimmitt's year," has just returned to the Colony and his presence will not only strengthen the home team but I think give it sufficient renewed confidence to win by a small margin.

The Club de Recreio first team has to visit Austin Road and although they may be expected to win as they did last year, I do not think there will be much in it at the finish — the Portuguese retain their team intact but A. J. Hall has a new number in Cheesman who after starting the season as lead in this division went as third man in the Second and has made good. The other Recreio team receives Craigengower and I can see no other result than a good win for visitors. Joe Landolt goes back as third man to U.M. Omar whose brother plays in that position to R. Basa.

The Kowloon Cricketers entertain the Indians and in spite of the good record which the latter have this season, I think that green advantage will turn the scales in favour of the home-ers.

SECOND DIVISION

The Civil Servants lost to their Footballing-neighbours in the corresponding game last season and a repetition of this result seems to be indicated, though the margin should be much less.

Kowloon Football Club are at home to Craigengower who will be anxious

THE 14 CLUBS RULE

Should Replacements
Be Permitted
BORROWING FROM A PARTNER

LONDON, June 19.—In breaking his putter and borrowing that of his partner to continue the round, James Adams, the famous Scottish professional attached to the Royal Liverpool Club, has raised a nice point under the new 14 club rule.

Two questions arise: (1) Does such an act contravene the intentions of the Rule; (2) if so, is the player liable to disqualification in both stroke and match play?

Before attempting an answer to either of these questions it will, perhaps, be as well to quote the Rule recently issued by the Royal and Ancient Club to the four unions and other representative bodies.

The Rule is as follows: "In competitions the clubs used by a player during a round shall not exceed fourteen, and the clubs carried shall be restricted to that number. Penalty — Disqualification." The Rule also applies to private matches between two or more players, though what the nature of the penalty to be enforced if a player is found to be carrying more than the maximum number of clubs allowed is not stated. The matter is left entirely to the discretion of the opponent, who has three courses open to him. Firstly, he can claim the match; secondly, he can report the matter to the committee with a view to a stop being put to the practice; thirdly, he need say nothing about it.

The First Course

As regards the first course, it is to be imagined that precious few players would go to the extreme of claiming the match and the stake, if any. Such action would lay a man open to a charge of bad sportsmanship, the worst possible thing that can happen to a golfer. The second course, while less objectionable, has a nasty flavour about it, because it is tantamount to telling tales behind another's back—an unforgivable offence. The third course is the one that will be followed in the vast majority of cases, because, as everybody knows, the carrying of an extra club or two is not likely to make all that difference either in a man's play or the fortunes of the match. But in competitions the matter assumes a totally different aspect; there is the Rule, and it has to be obeyed.

In the Adams case there was no question of more than fourteen clubs being "carried," though more than that number were "used." The vital phrase in the Rule is: "The clubs used by a player during a round shall not exceed fourteen." There is no denying that Adams used fifteen, and, consequently, by a strict interpretation of the Rule, he laid himself open to disqualification. It is quite certain that St. Andrews never intended a player should be disqualified in such circumstances.

A Recent Case

It is conceivable that a player might break, or even lose, two or three clubs in the course of a round, and on the grounds of equity he should be entitled to replace the clubs, or borrow from his partner, or opponent, as the case may be. There are good reasons for stating that in framing the Rule the R. and A. had in mind a second person carrying spares and special clubs for a player, and so the word "used" was inserted.

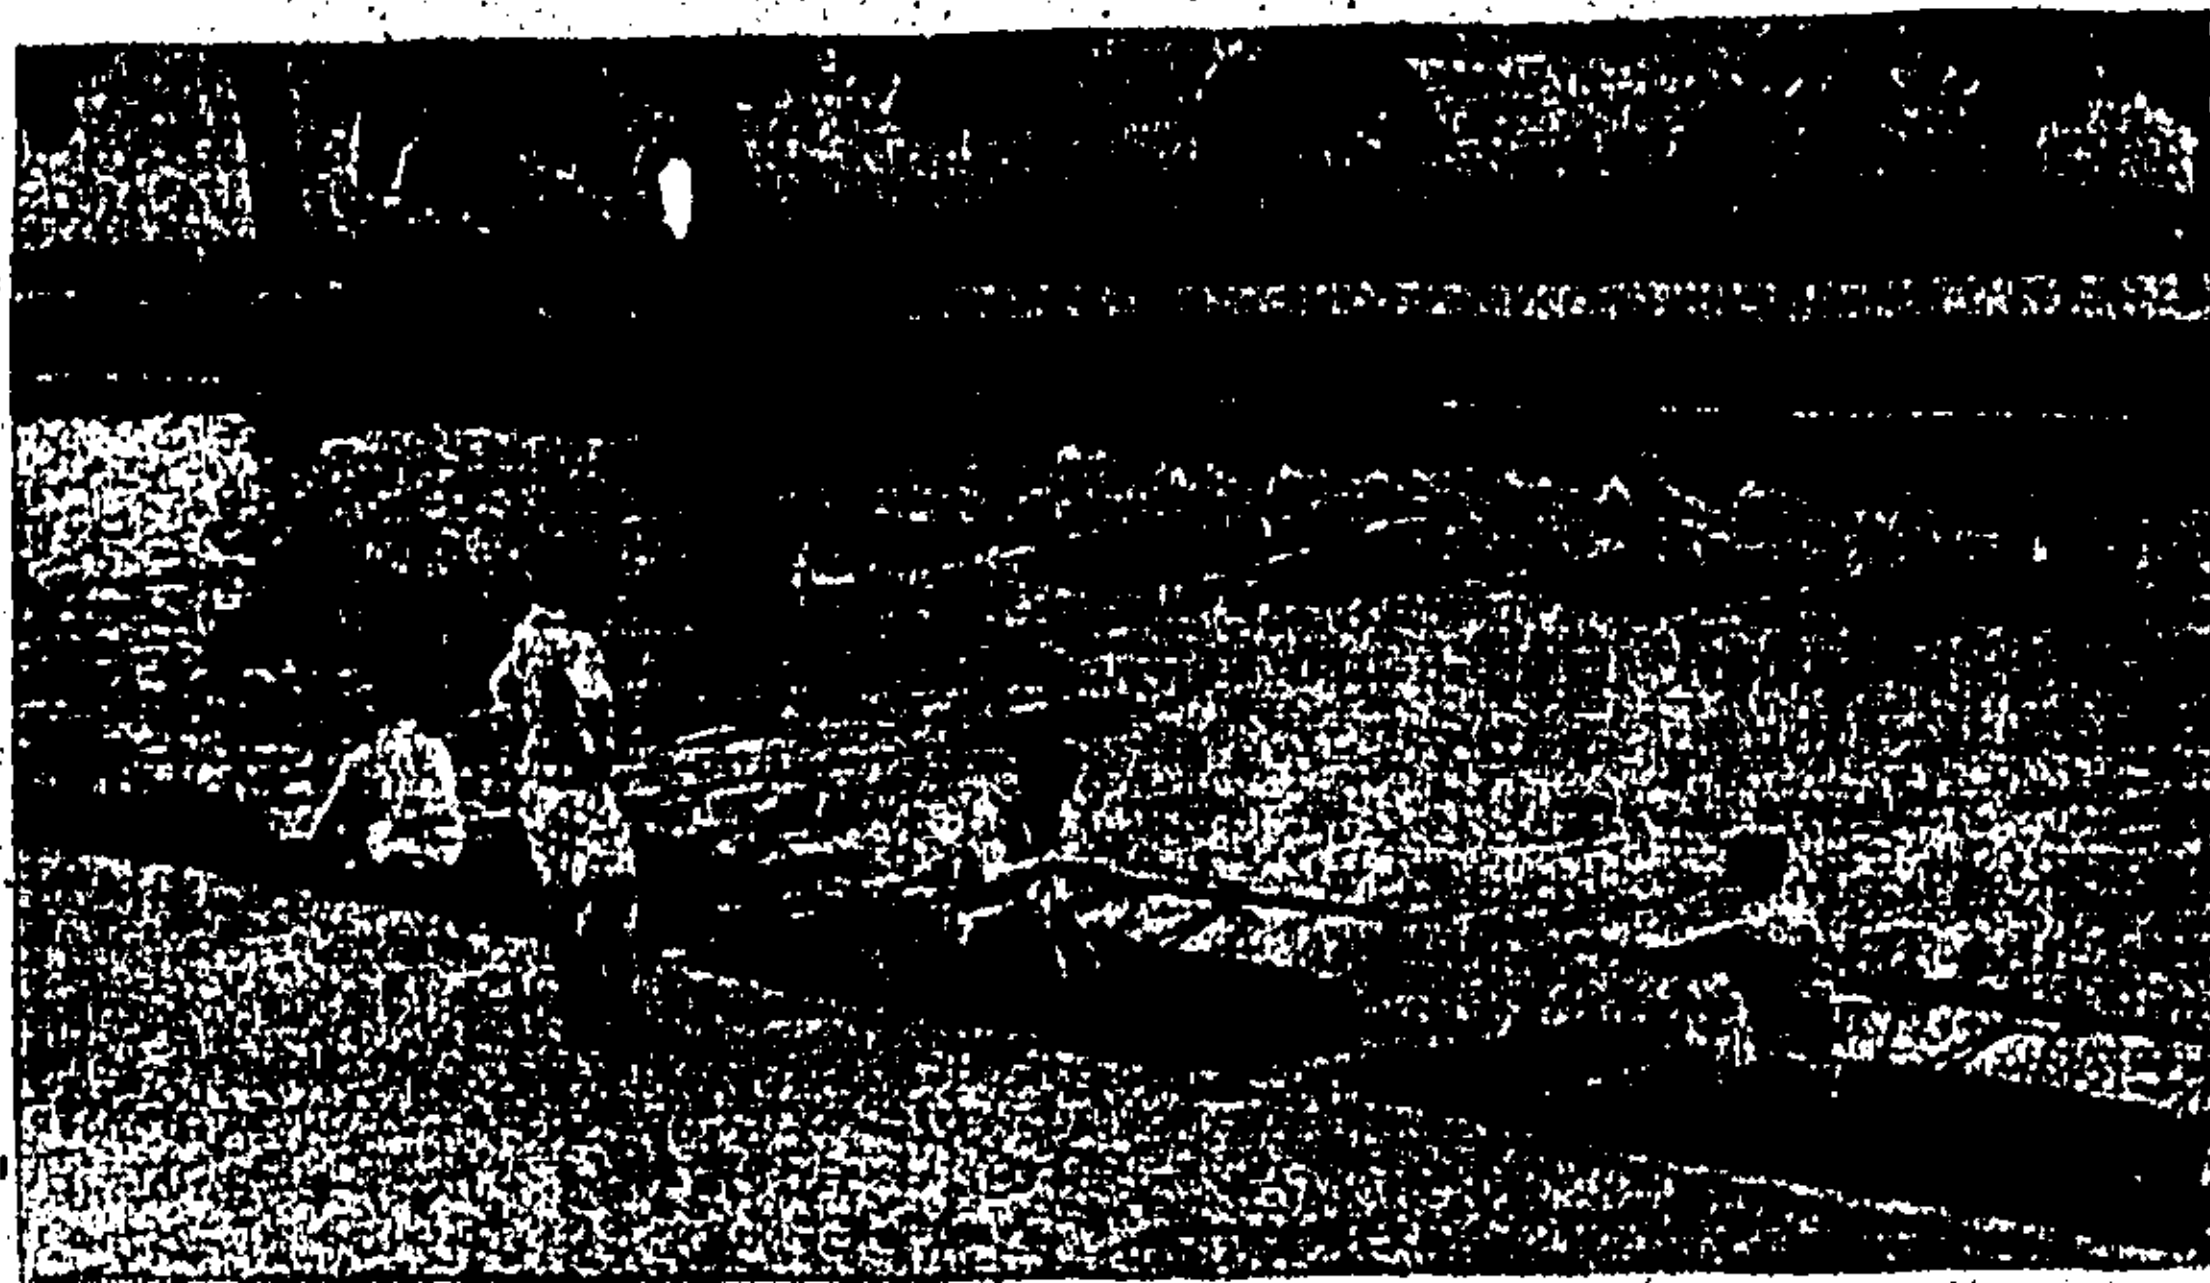

It was Henry Cotton who asked the question, "What is there to prevent me playing one set of clubs on the outward journey at St. Andrews and replacing them by an entirely different set for the homeward half?" The answer is simple. He would have "used" twenty-eight clubs instead of fourteen.

There is the case of the competitor in the recent Lancashire Amateur Championship who carried the regulation number of clubs, but a relative, who followed him round, carried a spare putter, which the player used alternately with the one in his bag. Such action clearly constituted a breach of the Rule both in the spirit and the letter.

An interesting point is raised by Mr. John Duncan, a former Welsh amateur champion. In his capacity as referee in one of the foursomes in the recent women's match between Great Britain and France he heard one of the French players say to her partner's caddie, "Come here; I may want to use one of her clubs." Actually she did not borrow a club, which, perhaps, was fortunate for the referee, who confessed that if the player had loaned a club he would have been puzzled to give a decision.

One Of Objects

Obviously, in such circumstances, the word "used" becomes operative, and, therefore, the player would have been liable to disqualification. One of the objects of the limitation rule was to lessen the burden of the caddie, who, in recent years, had been compelled to carry an ever-increasing load of clubs and equipment, such as mackintosh clothing, jersey, shooting-stick, umbrella, an extra pair of shoes. Certain overseas golfers of international repute, particularly those from the United States, burdened their caddies with as many as twenty-four clubs, a number manifestly ridiculous for any practical purpose.

Cambridge University college crews are now busy in training for the May Bumping Races which, curiously enough, took place on the Cam this month. Oarsmen in their practice tubs are here seen watching a college eight on the Cam. (Copyright, Fox).

Because of the many accessories it is still possible for a caddie to be overburdened, and in this connection Major Forbes-Bell, secretary of the Royal Liverpool Club, makes the suggestion that, instead of limiting the number of clubs there should be a limitation of weight, the maximum being 28 lb. Anything above that should be charged at the rate of 6d. a lb. By this means many caddies would reap a rich, and not an undeserved, harvest.

However, in the matter of breakages, not an infrequent occurrence on hard ground, and where there is a stony subsoil, St. Andrews may feel disposed to redraft the Rule so as to permit of replacements. It seems unfair that a player, through no fault of his own, should be handicapped by the loss of an important club, though how Adams came to break his putter is incomprehensible.

Gee, boy, if I worked out what the British Amateur Championship costs me I should give up golf.—Charlie Yates.

WYATT MAY BE ABSENT
FOR A MONTH

London, June 14.—After an examination of the thumb injury which R. E. S. Wyatt, the Warwickshire batsman, received when batting against Sussex at Horsham last week, the Warwickshire County Club announced that it would be three or four weeks before he is fit to play again.

For their match with Cambridge University to-day, Warwickshire make an interesting change. C. C. Goodway, who kept wicket for the county two years ago, is coming in, and Buckingham, the present wicketkeeper, will also play, it is understood, as a batsman-bowler.

UMPIRE INJURED AT MANCHESTER

London, June 14.—A. Dolphin, one of the umpires in the match between Lancashire and Nottinghamshire at Manchester yesterday, was struck on the head by a ball, and had to leave the field.

Dolphin, who is the former Yorkshire wicketkeeper, was standing at square leg, and Oldfield pulled a ball from Giles straight at him.

Cecil Parkin, the old Lancashire and England bowler, deputised as umpire for Dolphin.

Ghaus Mohammed Surprises All The Tennis Critics

Enters Quarter-Final After Great Struggle

EUGENE SMITH, "GIANT-KILLER," ALSO SUCCESSFUL

London, To-day.—Bright sunshine and a light breeze marked yesterday's play at Wimbledon where the men's singles, the principal event, is drawing to the concluding stages.

Feature of the current tournament has been the elimination of several "seeded" players and the really excellent performances of Ghaus Mohammed, of India, an extremely cautious player, who has reached the last eight.

Ghaus Mohammed yesterday completely broke up Szgeti, the Hungarian Davis Cup player, whom he beat after a colossal struggle which went the whole distance and lasted two and three-quarter hours. The second set was a long drawn out affair in which both players alternately secured the advantage. The Indian finally lost this set after 30 games had been played.

Eugene Smith, the young Californian school-master, whose "giant-killing" has amazed all the critics, advanced still further yesterday, beating the Hungarian Gabory in the easiest possible manner by 6-0, 6-4, 6-3.

Jacques Brugnon, one of the original "Four Musketeers," met his Waterloo at the hands of Hener Henkel of Germany, after defeating de Stefani, veteran Italian Davis Cup player, in a previous round.

In the Men's Doubles, the Britishers Collins and Tinkler did a good job of work when they eliminated the powerful French pair Dallos and Pallada, while Oliff and Ronald Shayer, another promising British combination, advanced at the expense of Emmett and Nicholl, also of Britain.

In the Mixed Doubles, a formidable combination in Bobby Riggs and Miss Alice Marble entered the third round when they beat the British pair Eric Filby and Miss Mary Whitmarsh.

Miss Stammers' Success

Lovely Miss Kay Stammers, one of Britain's main hopes in the Women's singles, won easily against Miss Brown, while Mrs. Sperling, who eliminated Hong Kong's Miss Gem Hoahing in an early round, also had an easy passage at the expense of Miss Diana Wood, a former Devonshire county player.

Miss Stammers was also successful in her Mixed Doubles match, in partnership with Donald McNeill. This pair, who on paper are an ideal combination, had a great first set struggle with Gales and Miss Dietz but after winning at the 26th game, went through the second set for the loss of three games.

Sixteen-year-old Miss Jean

Nicholl, "seeded" in the women's singles on her first appearance at Wimbledon when she lost, met with success when partnered by experienced Miss Betty Nuthall in the Women's Doubles, advancing to the third round at the expense of Miss Morrison and Mrs. Uber.

RECREIO AND C.B.C. TILT TODAY

Owing to the departure of the U.S.A. Mindanao this morning the baseball programme for the weekend had been curtailed and only two games will now be played.

This afternoon, Recreio meet the Chinese Baseball Club, who still have an outside chance for the title. The latter should win comfortably though it is possible that the Portuguese team may give them a good game.

To-morrow, U.B., potential champions, play South China and the Brewers should encounter little difficulty in registering their six successive win of the season.

A short time ago we published what we considered a prize hand-luck hand. To-day's is the exact opposite, for indeed several miracles were needed for young Robert McPherran to make his ridiculous-ly optimistic six-diamond contract.

Miracle No. 1 occurred when West kindly opened a club right into Mr. McPherran's tenace. Declarer played a low heart, which was won by East and a club returned. After winning with the club Ace, Mr. McPherran cashed his Ace of spades. His next played the Ace of hearts, then trumped a heart in dummy and now the second lucky break occurred, for the King and Queen had both dropped. Mr. McPherran next trumped a spade and West King fell. Mr. McPherran then played the Ace of trumps, which was followed by a small trump to dummy's King. That's still one more miracle needed to make the contract and it occurred when Mr. McPherran discarded his hand.

ing club on dummy's Queen of spades and West failed to hold the remaining trump!

While we doubt that we have ever seen a hand as lucky as this, one, Mr. McPherran, when reproached with his optimistic bidding, replied complacently, "When you lead a good clean life, these things just seem to happen."

The Japanese military authorities have rushed reinforcements northward from Canton. It has been confirmed that Sunkai, on the Canton-Hankow Railway about 17 miles north of Canton, has been recovered by the Chinese.

Tsengshing is still under Chinese siege. A bitter combat is in progress in the villages in the northern suburbs.

Shenkong, south of Tsungfa, has been wrested back by the Chinese.

Meanwhile, the Chinese are making headway in the counter-offensive against Kongmoon and Sunwui. A Chinese column has occupied the heights immediately west of Sunwui while another column has passed through Fatzenkau, northwest of Kongmoon. They are marching on Sunwui and Kongmoon respectively.—Central News.
